For small-town charm, marvelous walking and biking trails, and an easy-as-pie connection to the heart of D.C., Dunn Loring checks all of the boxes — and then some.

This cozy neighborhood outside of the nation's capital packs a lot into its land area of just about two square miles. With beautiful homes, plenty of restaurants and coffee shops, and an impressive number of parks, it's no shocker that Dunn Loring is rated one of the best places to live in Virginia.

You'll start experiencing the charm right from the scenic drive in on the George Washington Memorial Parkway. (You can also skip the drive and arrive by Metro if that's your fancy; there are three nearby stations.)

A great place for young families, joggers, four-legged friends, and charming wooden bench enthusiasts, Dunn Loring might just be the place for you, too.
